W. I. News

The regular meeting of the W.I. was held at the farm home of Mrs. D. Paxman, on Friday, June 5th.

With President Mrs. Paxman presiding, the meeting opened with members singing "Home on the Range" followed by the Flag Salute and Creed. Roll call was answered by 17 members each responding with an item of pioneer happenings. Many of the members brought along a family heirloom.

Thank you card was received from Mrs. F. Gardner, for flowers received when in the hospital.

Plans were made for those wishing to attend the district No. 4 fair, which will be held at Spring Coulee, on Thursday, June 11th. Mrs. D. Paxman has consented to have her name submitted for Constituency Convener at this fair, and Mrs. I. Kitchen will act as delegate from Raymond.

Our program was a talk giving the highlights of the Provincial convention, the latter part of May, which was attended by Mrs. M. Holland. She was very enthusiastic about the convention, and thanked the W.I. for the privilege of being able to attend this event. The door prize a plastic sandwich tray was won by Mrs. Wm. Paris.

After the meeting adjourned a delicious lunch was served by the hostess, Mrs. D. Paxman.

Delynn Hirsche spent Tuesday and Wednesday in Taber visiting Grant Nelson.

Mr. and Mrs. Whitney Bennett of Great Falls are announcing the birth of a daughter, born on May 25th.

Mrs. Bernice Blackham and two children have left for Nevada after enjoying a visit with her mother Mrs. Mabel Heninger.

Mr. and Mrs. Blackham will be living in New York this winter where Max has a $1,000.00 Fellowship at Cornell University where he will take his Masters Degree in Business Administration. He graduated at Logan University this Spring.

A Prowler Is On The Loose Again

We received the following note from Mrs. Moss and print it as a warning to other residents.

June 12, 1953.

I am companion to Mrs. Kinsey and the people of Raymond all know how ill she has been for several months, at her home. About 12:45 this morning I was awakened by a man in the bedroom, taking off his coat. I sat up and yelled to him, "What are you doing in this house! How dare you come here!" Mrs. Kinsey called "Who is he, Nan?" To me, he was a stranger, did not speak, but pulled up his coat and rushed out the door from which he came.

The room in which we sleep is well lighted from the bathroom light. He could see us both as well as we could see him. I quieted Mrs. Kinsey who was very upset. I phoned the police and the neighbor near us.

Would it not be possible for the Police Department to be provided with a car for just such occasions as this? It could prevent something dreadful from happening. If I had had anything at the time to use on the intruder, he would not have escaped unharmed.

He was a man about 5ft. 5in. Thick set, and wore a light brown coat. Dark hair not close cut. As he pulled his coat up, I noticed the end of the coat was rounded and not pointed as some are.

Mrs. Margaret Moss.

Only a few nights later an attempt was made to force the lock on the door of the Fred Gardiner home, so residents of the town and particularly that district are advised to lock their doors at night.

Engagement Announced

Mrs. Anne Larsen announces the engagement of her daughter Carole Dee to Frank E. Patey son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Patey of Lethbridge. The wedding will take place on July 3rd, in the Raymond Stake House.

The Psychology Club met at the home of Mrs. Virginia Holmes at which time Jennie Vance gave an interesting lesson on "Believe In Yourself." Special guests were Mesdames Anne Turner, Alma Mendenhall and Donna Meldrum.

A delightful lunch concluded the evening.

An Open Letter To Sportsfans;

Dear Sportsfan;

You know, or do you, that Raymond has a baseball team this year? The games are played every Wednesday at 1 o'clock and very Sunday at 3 o'clock. I'm glad there is a team in Raymond because I enjoy watching the game, especially when the team is as good as the present one. They stand about 3rd or 4th or league standings.

But did you know that there might not be a team here very long? As usual, that old enemy "finance" is raising its head again. Raymond player can get dozens of people to come and watch the games but you perhaps won't believe this, but some of these fans won't support their club in any way. They won't put their hands in their pockets — they may put them in but won't bring them out with any money in them — not even a decent entrance fee.

The Oxen Will Be Here Again

Clarence Allred has his oxen in good shape for the big do's during the stampede season. He will enter them in the Lethbridge Parade on June 22 and later in the day they will be matched against tractors in a pulling contest in front of the grandstand. Clarence has expanded a little this year and will have two yoke of oxen in our own parade at ten o'clock Wednesday July 1st. Efforts are being made to arrange a pulling contest in front of our local grandstand during the afternoon — more about that next week.

Gladys Holt left on Saturday for Provo where she will visit for a time while deciding where to make her headquarters in the States. She plans to remain there indefinitely.

Mrs. Dan Smith in enjoying a visit from a friend, Mrs. Kelley Nemeth and two sons of Victoria, B. C.

Mr. and Mrs. Leo Vance of Lethbridge spent the week-end as the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Orson Anderson.

Our Message To You

There is a reason!

Please accept our humble apologies for being so out of step in our newspaper. It is a sad story so we'll make it brief.

Before the first of May we were advertising from Edmonton to Winnipeg for another printer to help Roxie, Joe and I with the job and newspaper work here. Just at holiday time not too many workers are anxious to leave their jobs before having their vacation. So the response to our ads was very light. Just at the time when Joe was learning how to be a little more useful on the newspaper, he decided to take off for the west coast. This he did without giving us any notice whatsoever.

What with the backlog work we had and our paper growing to the occasion at six pages, it was the blow that almost killed the father. Roxie immediately stepped into the breach and together we have been able to just keep our head above water.

We were fortunate the other day in interesting Anne Larsen in learning to run the linotype and so far she has progressed very well, which is a big step toward more regularity of publication.

Our ads are still being published from here to Toronto and we have high hopes of getting another printer in the not too distant future.

Again please accept our thanks for being so patient and understanding.

Sincerely,

Roxie and Max

Alice Stevens And Kenneth Garner Wed In Cardston Temple

A wedding of interest took place in the Alberta Temple at Cardston recently when Alice, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Stevens of Raymond became the bride of Kenneth, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Garner also of Raymond. President W. L. Smith performed the double ring ceremony in the presence of many relatives and friends.

In the evening a wedding ceremony was held in the Raymond Stake House which was prettily decorated for the occasion.

The bride chose a floor length gown of nylon net over satin with chantilly lace bodice and lily point sleeves, with matching head dress. Her bouquet was of pink roses and calla lilies. Attending the bride as maid of honor was Miss Eva Garner, sister of the groom. Her dress was of pale green net. Bridesmaids were Miss Gladys Holt in plum colored net and Mrs. Vivian Preston and Mrs. June Fawns in mauve net.

Little Lynn Stevens, niece of the bride, was flower girl in a blue taffeta gown and she carried a nosegay of pink carnations.

Best Man was Dean Garner, brother of the groom. Ushers were Reed Fawns, Philip Redd and Vernon Garner (continued on page two)

Stampede Plans Being Made

The committees have been appointed and preparations are underway to make this years Stampede and Race Meet one of the best in the history of Raymond.

The Chamber of Commerce are sponsoring the show again this year and President Arledge Hill and his fellow workers are putting in a lot of hours and effort to make the show a success. Karl Wilde is again Stampede Manager and is being assisted by H. Hartland Stevens as Secretary-Treasurer, and Jack Evans as Entry Clerk and Arena Secretary. Grant Hall is heading up the Racing Committee with Jack Kenney and Bill Hague in charge of the grounds. Ray Dewey and Jack Kenney are looking after the arena and Clark Lund is directing the whole show.

A gala dance is being planned for both nights after the show with music by the Taber Tempo Kings. The whole show promises the people of the district high quality entertainment for two fun-filled days. Make your plans now to attend.

Help Needed At The Stampede Grounds

This years Stampede is being sponsored by the Raymond and District Chamber of Commerce and so everyone has a vital interest in the success of the show whether they know it or not. Those in charge of the grounds are anxious to get them into first-class shape for the big day and are looking for some help to do it. If you have some time that could be put in on this job you are asked to contact either Bill Hague or Jack Kenney.

NOTICE TO WATER USERS

It will be necessary to make drastic restrictions on the use of water if some people persist in wasting water by excessive watering of lawns and gardens.

Mrs. Helen Palmer Given Last Rites

Last respects were paid to one of Raymond's pioneers recently when many friends and relatives congregated at the Second Ward Chapel in memory of Mrs. Helen Palmer, who passed away at the age of 91.

"O My Father" sung by the Second Ward Choir conducted by Gen. Hawkins with Dora Oler at the organ, was followed by the invocation offered by Pres. John A. Bishop Jensen, who officiated, told the story of her life, after which a vocal trio by Gen. Hawkins, Laura Watson, and Velma Bigelow sang "My Prayer." T. George Wood's sermon was followed by "When I Leave This World Behind" a favorite song of Mrs. Palmer's, sung by Marie Matkin, after which O. W. Ursenbach of Lethbridge spoke words of comfort. The choir rendered "The Deepening Trials" before the Benediction was offered by Bishop Rulon Dahl.

Want To Know About Statements?

We came upon an article on the monthly statement, that should be sent out by each business that gives credit that we thought you might find enlightening. The article was printed in Owensland, Australia, magazine and was copied from a Winnipeg journal. H. Hartland Stevens of the Treasury Branch was the author and gave permission for us to use it.

Incidentally all kinds and sizes of statements are printed at the Recorder office — order yours today!

Clarence Allred told us last week that he had alfalfa in bloom and said that to his knowledge it was blooming earlier this year than he had ever seen it in this country.

Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Norcott of Woolf Point, Montana visited with Mrs. Fanny Litchfield last Thursday for a few hours. It was a special thrill for Mrs. Litchfield as they knew her son Doug in the Mission Field.

The Lions Go Native

As a final windup for the season, the local Lions and Lionesses took to the woods on Monday, June 15th, when they held a Weiner Roast and Installation of Officers for 1953, at Victoria Park.

Feature of the evening was a Soft Ball game, in which a record number of players hobbled around the bases. After the game eats were served, and the weiners roasted over a roaring fire. Arledge Hill gave his usual report from the Colony, and then joined in a trio with Joe McLean and Joe Strong aided by Walter Mitson with his accordion. Louis King gave out with some parlor jokes, and so a very excellent affair wound up the years work. The next meeting will be 7th. Sept.

Do You Want Milk Delivered?

The town of Raymond may soon be without an organized milk delivery system. For the past several months the Williams Brothers have been making a concentrated effort to give Raymond citizens a dairy service and the satisfaction of most of their customers attest to the fact that they have succeeded to a large degree.

Summer is almost upon us at the present time and so many people are again milking the family cow that is allowed to dry up in the cold months. The family cow is a wonderful institution and should never be done away with as such, but, so often the family cow becomes a small scale dairy with friends and neighbors taking milk delivery of her produce,— that is when it becomes a headache for the commercial dairy.

We have had several discussions on this subject with Cliff Williams during the past month and even if we don't know too much about the dairy business we can see the unfairness of the situation and can sympathize with the Dairy's position.

During the winter months the dairy business could be called good but when summer comes business falls off to such an extent that it is a losing proposition. The reason for this drop is, as we have said, that a lot of people start selling milk from the family cow. This is carried to such an extent that the operators of the local dairy are giving serious consideration to selling their milk to a city dairy. As a matter of fact officials of one of the Lethbridge dairies will be in Raymond to discuss details of this plan one day this week. If this is allowed to happen the citizens of Raymond would either have to buy pasteurized milk from the stores or unpasteurized milk from their neighbors. It is a matter of record that if the Lethbridge dairy is successful in buying the milk from this dairy and selling it back to local residents the price would automatically be raised to twenty-five cents (25¢) a quart. Both the inconvenience and added expense of this plan lead us to believe that something definite should be done about keeping the Raymond Dairy in business in our community.

That's something as far as the dairy operators are concerned, as for the Town of Raymond to sell a license to operate a dairy here in town. What this would mean to the milk consuming public is that they would be unable to buy milk from their neighbors unless he too had a Dairy License from the Town of Raymond. This would mean that anyone selling milk would have to conform to the same standards of cleanliness and quality that the local dairy is obliged to do, to pass provincial government inspection. To our way of thinking this no more than right. If people wanted to buy milk they could get it from the stores who would be handling milk from other licensed dairies. Anyone so desiring could still keep the family cow so in no way could it be taken that the local dairy operators are asking for complete control of the milk distribution in town.

They have brought this before the Town Council on various occasions and have met with no success, because of divided opinions among Council members. If you are interested in helping to keep the Raymond Dairy doing the job they are at present the thing to do is inform the Town Council of it, by contacting them personally or by writing a letter setting forth your opinion so that they may act upon it.

The decision of the milk users of the town will be final as far as the local dairy operators are concerned, because they have a definite offer for their milk which will mean more money with less headaches. Cliff told us that given a fair chance the revenue from their milk would be about the same and that they bought the dairy for the purpose of delivering milk to the citizens of Raymond, but that if they weren't given the protection of a Town license they were definitely going to go out of the milk delivery business. We tried to contact all members of the Council to get their views on this question, but were unable to do so will try to have a full report when the question is again raised in Council.

It's up to each and every family and person in town — if you want a daily delivery of pasteurized milk let your Town Council know about it!

How much does a wildcat cost?

A "wildcat" is a well drilled in an area where oil has never been found. Drilling costs vary, but the average wildcat in western Canada runs to more than $100,000. One well cost $1,600,000—and found no oil!

Oil is making an increasingly important contribution to our standard of living. How many of these questions about it can you answer?

How many wildcat wells find a new oil field—
1 in 3? 1 in 7? 1 in 23?

Since 1939 the cost of living index has risen by 85%. During that time has the price you pay for gasoline gone up by—44%? 79%? 103%?

A lot of oil has been discovered in the west since 1946. In that time have Canada's oil reserves increased—4 times? 23 times? 37 times?

Here in Alberta, who owns oil in the ground—governments? farmers and other landowners? oil companies? other business corporations?

Canada's growing oil industry means orders for many businesses, jobs for many Canadians. Last year Imperial's purchasing department bought equipment and supplies from Canadian firms amounting to—$12 millions? $56 millions? $110 millions?

The long-term average in western Canada is 1 in 23. Only 1 in 87 has found a field capable of producing as much as 2,000 barrels a day.

The average retail price of gasoline is only 44% higher than prewar, even with higher road taxes in all provinces.

Reserves have increased 23-fold in the past six years. Canadian fields now supply all the prairies and part of B.C. and Ontario.

Three answers are right. Oil companies do not own mineral rights. They are on a share-cropper basis; they do the work and take the risks of failures, paying up to 16½ per cent. of all oil produced to the owner of mineral rights—usually governments, which own 90% of the rights to Alberta's minerals.

$56 millions. About 4,500 Canadian companies sold Imperial supplies ranging from heavy steel plates to paper clips.

WHO OWNS CANADA

Don't worry, Canadians still own Canada, says G.K. Shells of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association who recently pointed out that the proportion of domestic capital investment in this country, despite the increasing influx of foreign money is steadily increasing. A generation ago, Mr. Shells stated, the net foreign investment from all sources in Canada amounted to almost 20% of our national wealth. Today that figure is less than 5%.

With an enormous area still of almost virgin country to be opened, Canadians need and welcome foreign investment and with their own healthy stake in the national development they have no fears of any domination.

Your Monthly Statement

Usually, when we talk of statements, we assume reference is made to Financial Statements, indicating the worth or conditions of a business. There is, however, another form of statement, also of great importance in general use by all good Companies large or small who operate a proper accounting system. The purpose of this article is to draw the attention of the individual, who is sole owner or operator of a business, to the urgent necessity of taking up a monthly statement for each of his customers classed as "Accounts Receivable".

It is a well known fact that at many small places, work is done, or goods are bought on credit, and the only record of such transactions is carried by memory. We will not dispute that many consider this adequate, but with the present highly developed competitive operation of business, the proper recording of all transactions is essential if we are to maintain a good credit standing, and a profitable undertaking. We have known instances where the Creditor has called on an account, submitted his claim, and the debtor pulled out a roll of bills from some hidden recess in his clothing to take off the required currency. This looks prosperous, but there comes a time when that cash roll is depleted and no record of where it went, or where it originally came from remains. It is to this type of dealer we are making this appeal.

Every one starting in a business is naturally going to require credit, either in cash or goods, sometime or other during his business career. If he will go to the Bank to get a loan, the Bank will ask him for a Financial Statement, and possibly a list of his accounts, both owing by him and due to him. If he can show such a record his likelihood of obtaining a loan will be improved. The same remarks apply to an application for credit from a Wholesale house.

This means that a record of all Credit Sales should be kept in a form which shows at a glance how much is due from each customer. At the end of each month a list of all such bills or invoices should be made on a sheet, either typed or handwritten, to show all purchases and payments, and the net amount due. It is not essential to keep a Register or Ledger but, a copy of each sale, or value of work done, can be kept in a suitable cabinet under each customer's name. These should be listed once a month along with any payments received, to show the total owing.

This monthly statement should be made in duplicate and one copy attached to the charge slips or bills which are included in that statement. By doing this the debtor has definite knowledge of what he owes, and the creditor knows what is due to himself.

It is a statement of considerable importance, for from it a tradesman and the customer, knows how his business stands. If the latter receives no advice or information he will readily forget, as time passes. It is quite conceivable that both he and the operator forget the whole transaction. This applies particularly to repair work and manual labour, when no actual sale of merchandise takes place. A service station, for example, may be asked to repair a radiator, and the job means buying of, say, welding material and use of petrol, or electric power. It might take an hour or more and unless the value of the work is put on a bill at the time the job is finished it will soon be forgotten.

It need little imagination to see how easily many such small jobs will be overlooked. In the meantime the operator finds himself buying materials to work with, while receiving no cash return to cover the expense. Such a condition will exist only for a very short period, as he will find himself with no funds to purchase more material and no credit to assist him to finance.

To be sure of getting all that is due, it is a simple matter to buy an ordinary standard duplicate Sales Book, to make up the work detail and put the value of the work on the slip, mail or give the original to the customer and file the copy in an envelope or folder, with the customer's name shown. At the end of the month these are summarized on the monthly statement.

The value of such monthly statements is obvious for it represents cash you have to collect, and the statements you receive from the Wholesale represent what you owe, by comparing the totals of each, you get a good idea if you are making money or losing money. Not only does this statement prove the value from a credit viewpoint, but when you come to submit your income tax return the information could easily save you paying out taxes which are not really due. The fact too, that you send out a statement to all customers of money owing, creates a confidence in your business ability and will help you far more than if you just rely on the "Guess" or "Memory" method of book-keeping. "Memory very fondly strays" and a "guess" is as often wrong as right.

To help yourself, use monthly statements and we are quite sure that you will be agreeably surprised at the amount of money you will collect which, otherwise would be lost.

Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Garner and Mrs. Bruce Heggie motored to Rosemary Burley, Idaho where they will visit at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Claude Adamson.

It's difficult to believe, but American women use up 10,000 tons of steel on their heads every year — in the shape of hairpins and bobby pins. It's the American Iron and Steel Institute that says. And any husband will agree there must be another 5,000 tons of the stuff dropped about the average house—in the most unexpected places.

Mrs. Nephi Christian and Mrs. Milo Douglas left Thursday afternoon for Burley, Idaho where they will visit Mrs. Douglas' brother and family John Christians, and LeGrande Oregon to visit Mrs. Christian's sister Mrs. Allie Hendrickson.

They plan to be gone for about a month.

How many products

do we get from crude oil?

From eggs, a hen can expect just one product—chicks. But from crude oil, Imperial refines 679 different products, ranging from weed killers to heavy asphalts. And that is not all—crude oil also supplies petroleum gases and other raw materials for plastics and synthetic rubber.

Oil plays a large and growing part in our everyday living. How many of these questions about it can you answer?

Oil supplies are vital to defence. The gasoline required to move one armoured division 100 miles would run your car for 10 years? 95 years? 350 years?

The average weekly pay cheque of Canadians in 1939 would buy 84 gallons of gasoline. How many gallons will today's cheque buy?

Scientists believe oil was formed from the remains of tiny sea creatures which lived millions of years ago. Would you say oil is found in rock? pools? swamps?

Since 1947, oil companies have spent $775 millions on exploration and development in Alberta. In that time the gross value of all oil produced has been $450 millions? $1,350 millions? $830 millions?

It takes many millions of dollars in plant and equipment to provide high-quality oil products when and where you need them. How much does this amount to per Imperial employee?

$3,856? $16,597? $30,715?

The average family car could be operated for 350 years on the gasoline needed to move an armoured division 100 miles.

Even though gasoline road taxes are higher in all provinces, today's average pay cheque will buy 135 gallons.

Oil is usually found far underground in the tiny pores of rock such as limestone or sandstone. The word petroleum is derived from the Latin "petra" and "oleum"—rock oil.

Not quite $450 millions. Oil companies have received much less than this, of course, because from it must be paid field operating expenses, royalties, taxes and other charges.

Imperial's investment in plant and equipment is $30,715 for each of its 13,500 employees, and it is still rising.

LOOK WHAT THE WRIGHT BROS. STARTED!

As man enters the second phase of "the Age of Flight," which had its humble beginning 50 years ago with the Wright brothers' "crazy flying machine," fantastic aviation developments are predicted that will estound the world. But probably few modern inventions will be able to match the weird designs rigged up by early inventors. These three photos show the brainchildren of three inventors, captivated by the idea of pedal-power, who attempted to beat laws of gravity with winged bicycles. Notable among these was a Parisian, Raymond De Mangel, shown on his "Aviette," a bike equipped with a pair of sails. In 1919, he entered a contest at Longchamps race course. After some pedalling, De Mangel's peculiar machine rose in the air, fluttered a bit, then came down with a flop.

Muscular strain proved the downfall of another Frenchman's elaborate invention. In 1923, P. Le Sauteral used pedal power along with flapping of the arms to make his kite-like plane "soar like a bird." This frenzy of motion was too much for M. Le Sauteral's constitution, so his experiments came to naught.

Another beautiful dream faded in 1923, when U.S. inventor, W. F. Gilbert's pedal-driven plane made a fast descent, even with the addition of sextuple wings. Both before and after the Wright brothers' historic flight in 1903, many have tried to develop other versions of a motor-driven, heavier-than-air machine, but the basic principles of the Wright plane have proven their worth.

Mr. and Mrs. Reed Fawns and Vivian left on Monday for Utah, accompanied by Mrs. Orin Baird and son who have been visiting her parents Mr. and Mrs. Irven Fawns.

MRS. HELEN PALMER

Pallbearers were grandsons of the deceased, Delbert and Byron Palmer of Lethbridge, Edwin Palmer of Taber, Merrill Palmer of Picture Butte, Delmond O'Brien of Lethbridge and Bill Harding of Taber. Bishop Golden Snow dedicated the grave.

Christine Helen Larson immigrated to Minnesota from Sweden when three years old and at the age of 18 she moved to Salt Lake where she later married Wm. Palmer.

They and their family settled in Raymond the spring of 1903, the year of the terrible blizzard and although it was a forsaken looking land then, she was never sorry for the move.

She was president of the Mutual for many years and was a faithful member of the Relief Society as long as her health permitted. In the days when it would take an entire day to visit all the homes on her Visiting Teacher's list, she never missed a month in 39 years, and received a special award for this outstanding record.

As her children and grandchildren will testify, she was a great story-teller and at the insistence of the children would tell again and again the stories of pioneering in both Minnesota and Raymond.

Her husband, who died in 1929, and seven of her eleven children predeceased her; leaving Arlo of Rosemary, Aesel of Lethbridge, Les and Ada Orgill of Raymond to mourn her passing, as well as two stepchildren Parley and Marion Palmer, and Helen Atwood, a granddaughter who was raised by Mrs. Palmer. There are also 22 grandchildren, 52 great grandchildren and one great great grandchild.

Mr. and Mrs. Dieter Gehmlich are graduating this year at the University of Utah in Salt Lake; Ladon as a Lab Technician and Dieter as an Electric Engineer.

Dieter, who won another Fellowship, plans to get his Masters Degree next year.

George Ralph was a recent visitor in Calgary where he viewed a special showing of the Coronation. He reports it a very interesting experience and is still proud of the fact that he hails from good old England.

The Closing Primary Officers and Teacher's Meeting of the Fourth Ward was held at the home of Mrs. Gerlie Fairbanks with Mrs. Ruth Nalder presiding. A delicious lunch was served by the hostess.

AN OPEN LETTER

Let me be explicit — last Thursday, June 11, Wrentham visited Raymond. An excellent game was played—three balls at $3.75 each were used. Everyone attending thoroughly enjoyed the game. Each person was given ample opportunity to praise or howl. The collection taken by the coach-manager, diamond fixer — all rolled up in one person— came to the grand total of $11.05 — this much money to pay all the bills! When I was talking to him he was dejected — why shouldn't he be? The Sunday game at Wrentham with only about half as large a crowd, netted that club $29. What is the matter with the Raymond fans? Are they used to getting things for nothing? Your ball club at the present time is on the verge of bankruptcy! This is not because of mis-management or any such thing, but strictly due to non-support by the local fans. If you don't dig deep and support your club it will have to fold!

You do give moral support, you say. Moral support isn't enough! This club, one of the finest in the league, is made up almost entirely of home-town boys and so is doubly entitled to your financial support as well! It needs cars for away games — it needs men who will help collect — needs men who will help maintain the diamond. One man can't do it all. Don't you want a ball club? Don't you want to give 15 or 16 young men a chance to play organized ball? And don't you want to give yourself a lot of enjoyment just watching and rooting for the home team? Within the next week a canvass will be made for financial assistance. Don't be a piker and say no. Give and give generously! Better still, beat the canvasser to the punch — contact one of the following: Roy Minion, coach, manager, general factotum; Marj Allen, sec-treas.; John Laqua and Ted Allen, collectors.

A raffle will be conducted shortly and you are asked to buy a ticket — the club will fold it doesn't get some money soon. Be a sport!

Sincerely yours,

A Sport Fan.

Jalna

Though there are now several novels dealing with earlier episodes in the chronicles of the Whiteoaks, Jalna was the work in which that unforgettable family made its first appearance

Mazo de la Roche won with this story the Atlantic Monthly's prize of ten thousand dollars and there was good reason for it its immediate success with the public. It introduced them to the indomitable grandmother Adeline Whiteoak, and depicted the household at a particularly tense period of its intimate history. Piers has caused a tumult by marrying Pheasant without consulting the clan. Then Eden, the poet, comes back from New York with his cultivated and fastidious bride Alayne, to whom her new home presents a series of problems in self-adjustment—the gravest of them all soon arising from her love for Renny, the master of Jalna. This affair remains a secret, but Eden's own pursuit of Pheasant leads to his departure from Jalna to escape the wrath of Piers.

All is not discord, however, for Meg Whiteoak is reconciled to her old lover, Maurice Vaughan, and the book closes with a fitting celebration of Adeline's hundredth birthday.

Meanwhile the two uncles, Ernest and Nicholas, are tranquil or agitated adolescent Finch is wildly elated or dismally depressed; and the nine-year old Wakefield guilefully exploits every situation to his own advantage.

LILACS IN THE RAIN

By Mary Boyles

WHEN Elaine Bord opened the door to their apartment the room was too neat; especially the coffee table without her husband's pipe and assortment of magazines. To intensify the atmosphere of loneliness a spring rain was padding against the window pane. She sniffed the air. Lilacs! How could that odor have seeped into the heart of Chicago? Scooting at a trick of imagination, she dropped into a chair.

Thoughts pounded through her tired brain. Dave must have meant it last night when he had said that he was going to leave that very day for Vincennes to take over his uncle's paper. She had told Dave that she had an important job with an advertising firm. She had recently been promoted to a higher personnel job. The promotion put her salary a little above his, but she pointed out he was in line for the next raise in his firm.

She had not believed that Dave would leave without her. She shrugged her shoulders and sniffed the air again. The odor of lilacs seemed real. For her their fragrance held a particular memory. She closed her eyes and could see vividly a boy and a girl, jumping puddles on their way home from school one spring day.

"My teacher said I might get a solo dance in the festival, cause I did so good this year," Elaine had boasted. She repeated a part of the dance on the curbing. Dave had looked away, his thin pointed face solemn. She had danced three more steps before she noticed that Dave was running down the street, heedless of puddles. She had scampered after him.

Why had Dave looked so unhappy? Then she had known. While she was bragging about her part in the festival, she had forgotten what had happened to Dave. In his solo, when he had reached the high part, which he usually took so easily, his voice had broken. He had tried to continue his song but no sound had come.

"Dave, Dave," Elaine cried as she rushed around the house.

She had been about to enter the kitchen when she heard a sound under the lilac bush by the back door. "Dave," she cried and crawled under the lilac bush beside him. She had caught his fists as he pounded the earth. "Dave, your song was beautiful."

"I ruined the program," he had cried. "I heard you sing in practice. Your song was beautiful. Something just happened at the festival. You couldn't help it."

"Silly old song! Who cares?" he had said.

Another shower had been pelting against the lilac leaves. The odor of the lilacs had covered the two children like a soft fragrant blanket.

"You're pretty, Elaine. You're my girl. You can have all my lilacs if you want them." He had pressed his damp flushed face against hers. She had sat up giggling.

After that the lilacs had carried a memory of Dave. The two memories merged—the old and the one of last night. She knew that she must have been thinking only of herself again. She could not let Dave go to Vincennes without her. He had said something about having to finish some work at the office tonight. Perhaps she could catch him there. She was trembling so violently that she could hardly dial. The telephone rang several times; then Dave said, "Hello."

"Dave," she said breathlessly, "I want to go to Vincennes with you."

She heard him chuckle as he said, "Good."

"You'll think I'm silly, but I keep smelling lilacs . . . ever since I stepped inside the apartment."

"Have you been in the kitchen?" he asked.

"No," she answered, "just in the front room."

"There's a pitcher of lilacs on the kitchen sink. The flower man at the station had loads of fresh lilacs this morning."

"But how did they get here?" "I sneaked them in. I was betting on the lilacs. I didn't have anything to do with the rain."

The two new MIA Presidents of the Second Ward, Mona Palmer and Deb Gough, are receiving instructions at and Mrs. Alf (Thelma) Peacock of St. Paul, Alberta.
